Focus: practical guidance for procurers and project managers in circular procurement

When: 9 November 15:30-17:00 CET

Where: online webinar, link will be shared prior to the webinar

On the 9th of November Interreg North Sea Region projects Procirc and Circ-NSR are joining forces to organise a webinar to showcase best practices, practical tools and case studies for organisations that are working on the transition towards a more circular economy.

Public procurement can play a pivotal role stimulating the transition towards a more circular economy, if organised right. Circular procurement is a relatively new topic, for which there is no one size-fits-all solution. On a daily basis project managers, procurers and contract managers are working hard to translate circular ambitions and policies towards practical, tangible and concrete projects and interventions.

This webinar Procirc and Circ-NSR partners will provide insights into their experiences with circular procurement. During the two projects these experiences have been translated to best practices, practical guidance and showcases. During this webinar these will be presented by the practitioners and experts that have put these in practice and gained experience.

The following themes will be addressed during this webinar:

Governance and circular procurement

In a region, several public sector parties are active. Each of these has its own procurement policy and focus. But to accelerate the transition to a circular economy, upscaling is needed. How can you cooperate as organisations on a joint ambition in the field of circular procurement? And how can you bundle knowledge and experiences as purchasing organisations? Examples from different regions.
