INNO-QUARTER WORKSHOP, by Sybrith Tiekstra

Description

In this workshop, we will discuss the two versions of the Inno-Quarter service that ran over the summer, as well as the overarching efforts of the Inno-Quarter platform. We will focus on similarities and differences in the approach and execution of the program at Welcome to the Village and Hallifornia. We will discuss the strengths and obstacles of each program in context with the aims of the project, leading to concrete challenges and opportunities to focus on. The goal is to learn from each other where we can and to learn together where we need.

Secondly, the role of the international Inno-Quarter platform connecting the regional Inno-Quarters will be a topic for evaluation and discussion. We will be able to pick up topics from the general evaluation in the program.

Preparation:

I am working hard to present you with a preliminary overview of the impact of our summer 2018 Inno-Quarter programs.

To make some good progress during this workshop I would like you to prepare with

1. A little evaluation from your own perspective, based on what you have seen and experienced. Consider the following points:

- Biggest success(es)
- Biggest failure(s)
- Biggest strengths of the program
- Biggest weaknesses of the program
- Opportunities ahead
- Challenges ahead

2. Fill in this form about your start-up infrastructure: <https://goo.gl/forms/CvMUrfvMe5oL5Pvc2>

The more people that fill this form in, the better, if you can share the link and encourage others to contribute to the form, that would be incredibly helpful.

(This form was made to share beyond our partnership, so it includes some privacy statements and other sections, that might read a bit strange to you)
